IMAGE CREDITS

Many of the images contained in this doctoral dissertation are subject to restricted reproduction rights and belong to institutions, organizations and private collectors that have authorized their reproduction only to be used in this research project within the academic field (non-commercial use only for academic and educational purposes). Their utilization and decontextualized extraction are not allowed for use other than those that were agreed upon. For any use by entities or individuals, whether for commercial or educational/academic/research purposes, interested parties should contact the corresponding copyright holders of the images to negotiate the terms of reproduction. Everything possible has been done to adequately document the images, although in some cases it is possible that an error was made or the source that facilitated them could not be identified, so I apologize in advance. If any image here does not appear properly identified, I would greatly appreciate any contributions in this regard to help rectify the situation.
