Welcome from the President

Petal Kinder
IALL President

Bienvenidos a Barcelona - I am delighted to welcome you to Barcelona on behalf of the Local Planning Committee and the Association for the 32nd Annual Course on International Law and Legal Information.

I hope you will enjoy the programme and the social events which have been organised for us.

The Association is most grateful to our host, the Faculty of Law, University of Barcelona for their generosity and hospitality in making us welcome and allowing us the use of their excellent facilities. Their kindness and generosity of spirit has made this conference possible.

The theme of the conference is Catalan Law and Legal Information in a Global Context. Speakers at the sessions include some of Barcelona's leading legal academics, scholars, legal practitioners and law librarians who will provide us with presentations covering topics reflecting Catalonia's unique perspectives on international and domestic issues.

The programme will open with a welcome ceremony in the very beautiful and ornate Historic Building of the University of Barcelona which dates back to 1450. The room, known as the Paranimf, is where the University's main institutional ceremonies are held, including the inauguration of the new academic year and the awarding of honorary degrees. As such, it is a fitting place in which to hold our first event. A presentation on the history of the Catalan legal system will be given by Professor Oriol Oleart, professor of law at this University. We will be taken on a visit to the Rare Book Room and Manuscript Library situated within the Historic Building.

Further visits during the week will be made to the Barcelona Bar Association, the Parliament of Catalonia and the National Library of Catalonia.

The Optional Day on Thursday will take those of us attending to the rugged mountainous region of Montserrat where we will be provided with a tour of the Benedictine Abbey, Santa Maria de Montserrat. Inside the Abbey you will find Publicacions de l'Abadia de Montserrat, a publishing house which has one of the oldest working presses in the world, its first book was published in 1499. On the second visit we will see greener pastures at Món Sant Benet, the site of a medieval Monastery founded in the 10th century.

On behalf of all of us, I would like to take this opportunity to sincerely thank the Local Planning Committee, especially Montse Morante who has been our main conference contact, together with our Board Liaison, Pedro Padilla Rosa, all of whom have worked quietly and tirelessly to put together this excellent and varied programme.

I am certain that over the next few days all of you will enjoy not only hearing about the significant legal aspects of Catalan law but also experiencing the art, architecture and cultural heritage of this most vibrant city.

Petal Kinder
President, International Association of Law Libraries.

>Welcome to the University of Barcelona

Dear colleague,

As Rector of the University of Barcelona, it is my pleasure to announce the official opening of the 32nd Annual Course on International Law and Legal Information of the International Association of Law Libraries: Catalan Law and Legal Information in a Global Context.

When the International Association of Law Libraries contacted our university's Learning and Research Resources Centre about hosting this year's event, we knew this would be an excellent opportunity to contribute to the Association's work; and we were aware of the academic honour involved in being chosen to organize the event and the importance, for our own studies, of being the gathering point for so many distinguished experts in the field.

One of the aims of this year's Course is to bring to the fore the subject of Catalan Law — a legal system whose origins go back to the seventh century, no less, to the Liber Iudiciorum or Visigothic Code of the Hispanic king Chindasuinth and his son Recceswinth. In more recent history, the foundations of Catalan law were reinforced in the historic rights that the Principality of Catalonia held under the Crown of Aragon and brought together in the federal Pact of Tortosa of 1869, the letter of the Memorial de Greuges of 1885, the document les Bases de Manresa of 1892 and, finally, in Spain's most recent Statutes of Autonomy.

Today, that same body of law also defines our Catalan culture and customs. Closely tied to the institutions that constitute our territory, including the University of Barcelona, its agile and complex character reflects its long historical trajectory.

Catalan Law will be one of a number of subjects examined during this year's Course, which will feature presentations by speakers of particular academic renown. I sincerely hope you will find the experience profitable and that, during your stay, you will also have time to enjoy our city and its cultural heritage.

Welcome to the University of Barcelona and welcome to the International Association of Law Libraries' 32nd Annual Course on International Law and Legal Information.

Dídac Ramírez i Sarrió,
Rector of the University of Barcelona.

>Welcome to the Faculty of Law

Dear delegates,

I am pleased to welcome you to the Faculty of Law at the University of Barcelona, where the 32nd Annual Course on International Law and Legal Information will be held.

The theme of the conference is Catalan Law and Legal Information in a Global Context. The program aims to offer an overview of the Catalan Law in the Spanish, European and International context. It presents a variety of topics, which reflect Catalonia's unique perspective on some legal issues, both traditional and modern. Speakers at the sessions include highly regarded Catalan legal academics, scholars, and law librarians.

Law libraries play a key role in legal research. There is a perceived need to re-invent them in order to embrace a new role in the access and management of legal information. The International Association of Law Libraries provides a forum which is highly valued, since it provides a unique network for information sharing.

I would like to thank the Board of the International Association of Law Libraries for choosing Barcelona, as well as the extremely dedicated and efficient members of the local planning committee (academics and librarians) who run all aspects of the academic, cultural and social program of this conference. Special thanks to our Speakers and to all the delegates who came to Barcelona to attend this conference!

I hope you will find this conference both interesting and stimulating and that you enjoy meeting up with old friends and making new contacts.

Sincerely,

Enoch Albertí,
Dean of the Faculty of Law.

Summaries of Presentations and Biographies of Speakers

SESSION 1 // Sunday, September 15 – 17:00 – University of Barcelona Historic Building

Oriol Oleart

From Legal Compilations to Legal Codes: a Catalan Legal History approach (18th-20th Centuries)

Oriol Oleart is Ph.D. in Law (Legal History) and Professor at the University of Barcelona Faculty of Law. His main research interests are in the fields of Catalan Legal History, lawmaking processes, and Medieval and Modern Law Compilations.

This contribution deals with the evolution of the traditional Catalan legal system after the end of the Spanish War of Succession (early 18th Century) up to the 20th Century. It shows the way how the traditional Catalan legal system survives and evolves through the end of the Old Regime to the Constitutional 19th Century, and focuses on the traditional Catalan legal system (and law compilations) that survives beside the brand new Spanish Civil Code, along with other Spanish existing regional legal regulations (due to historical surviving legal systems from pre-existing kingdoms).

SESSION 2 // Monday, September 16 – 9:30 – Faculty of Law

Markus González Beilfuss

Catalan law in the Spanish context: Autonomous Communities

Since 1992 Markus Gonzalez Beilfuss has been a Professor of Constitutional Law at the University of Barcelona. He teaches and researches in the areas of constitutional law, federalism and immigration. He has been Immigration Director General of the Spanish Government (2010-2011) and Legal Adviser of the Spanish Constitutional Court (2005-2010). He has research and advisory experience with a number of international institutions including the United Nations and the Venice Commission of the Council of Europe.

Markus González Beilfuss will give an overview of the constitutional provisions that enable the coexistence of 18 legal systems in Spain, the Spanish legal system and the 17 legal systems of the different Autonomous Communities. He will focus on the competencies of Catalonia that are the basis of the present Catalan Law as well as on the provisions of the Spanish Constitution that regulate the coexistence and potential conflicts between all these legal systems.

Mar Aguilera-Vaqués

Catalan law in the European context

Mar Aguilera-Vaqués is Professor at the University of Barcelona. She teaches and researches in the areas of constitutional law, environmental law, sustainable development, democracy, freedom of expression and elections. Recently, she has also been teaching Spanish Constitutional Law and Spanish political transition at the University of Lyon 2, France. She has participated as an international observer and legal expert in different European Union and United Nations observation missions in diverse countries such as East Timor, Tunis, Zambia, Sudan, El Salvador and Cambodia. She recently participated in a European Council training programme for judges in Ankara on freedom of expression, political parties and media. Her last two publications deal with Environmental Law at the European Court of Human Rights and with political participation and elections at the European Union.

The presentation will provide an overview of the Catalan law at the European context. How the Catalan institutions can engage with the Spanish Government policies and decisions within the European Union and how European Union Law and policies are implemented in a decentralized country such as Spain where Autonomous Communities have their own Governments and Parliaments. I will also examine how this Spanish territorial decentralized structure affects the implementation and management of such EU norms. Finally, I will outline how Catalan institutions manage to engage with the European Union institutions and explain which instruments can guarantee this participation and how the EU responds to them.

Jaume Tarabal

Law of successions (I): Intestacy

Dr. Jaume Tarabal Bosch is Professor of Civil Law at the University of Barcelona, and is also part of the research team Study Group of Catalan Civil Law. He teaches and researches in the areas of security rights and the law of succession, with several publications in both fields.

The presentation will provide an overview of the legal regulation of intestate succession in Catalonia. In particular, it will explore the last reforms introduced by the Law 10/2008, of 10 July, which, following the codification scheme laid down by Law 29/2002, of 30 December (the so-called first law of the Catalan Civil Code), enacted Book IV of the Catalan Civil Code, on the law of succession.

Miriam Anderson

Law of successions (II): Forced share

Dr Miriam Anderson is Professor of Civil Law at the University of Barcelona. She has taught at various Spanish and foreign universities, and her research has focused on contract, land law and succession (in English, recently, see Anderson, M.; Arroyo, E. (eds.) The Law of Succession: Testamentary Freedom. Groningen: ELP, 2011). She currently co-directs ClinHab, the legal clinic on property and mediation of the UB Law School.

The enactment of Book IV of the Catalan Civil Code in 2008 could have been a golden opportunity to abolish, or at least to carefully rethink, the forced share reserved for descendants or parents, but different mishaps during the parliamentary procedure impeded a full-blown debate on this and other matters. However, the Catalan forced share has always been much less restrictive towards the testator's freedom than the Spanish, and the 2008 reform has eroded the forced share even further by means, inter alia, of limiting the claw-back effect on donations and through the introduction of a new ground for disinheritance. This presentation aims to provide a general overview of the Catalan forced share system and to highlight those innovations that lessen its impact on the testator's freedom.

Mónica Navarro-Michel

Same-sex couples in Spain and Catalonia

Monica Navarro-Michel is Professor of Civil Law at the University of Barcelona and currently Vice dean for Research and International Relations. Chair of the Library Commission at the Law Faculty. She is a Member of the Equality Committee at the Faculty of Law (University of Barcelona). She teaches and researches in the areas of Liability and Family law. She has taught in the Summer School Program Sexual Orientation Law organized by Whittier Law School in collaboration with the Williams Institute de la Universidad de California (UCLA). Her recent publications (in Spanish) deal with the new family models and assisted reproduction.

The presentation will provide an overview of the legal regulation of same sex couples in Spain and Catalonia. First, it will present how regulations have evolved, from legal disregard of same sex couples to the recognition of same sex marriages by the Spanish Law in 2005, upheld by the Spanish Constitutional Court. Secondly, it will highlight some challenges faced by same sex couples, such as adoption and access to assisted reproduction.

Elena Lauroba

The effects of divorce on children

Elena Lauroba is Professor at the Civil Law Department of the University of Barcelona. She works on Family Law, Property Law and Securities Interests Law. Since 2002, she teaches Family Law and Mediation. She has been member of the Observatory of Private Law of the Generalitat de Catalunya and General Director of Law in the Justice Department of the Generalitat de Catalunya (3/2009-1/2011). She has been too the responsible of the Gender Policies of the University of the Barcelona (2006-2009). She is member of the International Society Family Law, of the Association Henri Capitant des amis de la culture juridique française and of the European Law Institut.

The marriage breakdown should not alter the parental responsibilities towards the children; therefore, they remain joint responsibilities and, where possible, they should be carried out jointly. Consistently with these guidelines, Book II of the Catalan Civil Code's first option has been for shared custody, not only if the parents agree in this respect, but also if it is down to the judge to establish the concrete performance thereof. However, the court may decide that the best way to protect the minor's interests is by granting one of the parents custody, and contact or access rights to the other. It is generally understood that an active implication of both parents in the care and education of their children is the best possible outcome for the minor, but this needs to be tested in each individual case, since an automatic rule could lead to negative consequences. In the speech, specific attention is paid to the so-called parenting plan and to the advantages of family mediation, and analyses its regulation in the Catalan Civil Code.

Cristina González Beilfuss

Conflicts of law among Spanish legal systems

Cristina Gonzalez Beilfuss is a Full Professor of Private international Law at the University of Barcelona and presently Head of External and Institutional Relations at Escuela Judicial, the Spanish Training Centre for the Judiciary (on secondment). She teaches and researches in the areas of Private international law, Comparative law and European Union law, with a particular focus on Family law. She is a member of the Organizing Committee of the Commission on European Family Law and Spanish contact point in the European judicial network in civil and commercial matters and in IberREd (judicial network between Spanish speaking countries). Before being seconded to the Spanish Judicial school, she chaired the Library Commission at the Law Faculty and was a member of the Library Commission of the University of Barcelona.

Spanish private law is not unified. The presentation will first provide an overview of the so called Derechos forales and highlight the areas of the law where legislation is diverse. It will particularly focus on the law that applies to the property relationships between spouses in order to illustrate that differences between the different Spanish laws can be far-reaching. It will examine how conflicts of law issues are solved in domestic and international cases. In particular, it will touch on the problem faced in those cases where an international Convention or EU Regulation establishes that Spanish law is applicable. Since there is not one Spanish law, the specific Spanish system that governs must be determined.

Josep M. Reniu

Could Catalonia become independent?

Josep M<sup>e</sup> Reniu, Ph. D. in Political Science, is Professor of Political Science at the University of Barcelona, and is also currently the Director of the Political Science studies at the Faculty of Law at the University of Barcelona, and the Director of the Coalition Governments Observatory (OGC). Member of the Electronic Voting Observatori (OVE), his areas of research cover coalition politics and electoral processes, with a focus on ICT's and elections. His most recent book, Pactar para gobernar: dinámicas coalicionales en la España multinivel, has been published by Tirant lo Blanch in April 2013. From March 2013, he has been appointed by the Catalan government as a Member of the Advisory Council for the National Transition.

The presentation will provide an overview of the possibilities for Catalonia to become an independent State. It will be necessary to briefly review the historical relationship of Catalonia and Spain before focussing on a discussion of the different future scenarios. The main argument will focus on a very simple question, the aim of Catalan people to decide on their own future. To support it the presentation will present data on several dimensions covering political, legal, social and economic features that drive the current political process in Catalonia.

SESSION 10 // Wednesday, September 18 – 9:30 – Faculty of Law

Juli Ponce

Urban planning

Juli Ponce is a Law Professor a former Assistant Dean at the University of Barcelona School of Law, a former Director of the Public Administration School of Catalonia, and a frequent speaker on administrative law, zoning and urban planning and housing law.

My presentation will provide several general and brief ideas about how land use law works in Spain. The explanation will focus on very general trends, sometimes comparing the Spanish situation with American and other European land use laws. I will emphasize some common problems and legal solutions (e.g. discrimination and use of law, affordable housing, etc).

SESSION 11 // Wednesday, September 18 – 10:15 – Faculty of Law

Alexandre Peñalver

Human Right to Environment and its effective protection in Catalonia, Spain and Europe.

Alex Peñalver is Professor of Administrative Law, Professor of “Environmental Law” in Law Degree, coordinator of “Legal protection of the environment and sustainable development” in Master of Law at the School of Law (UB) and co-coordinator of the Pro Bonus Environmental Clinic at this School of Law. His main fields of research are: access to justice, public interest litigation, environmental citizen enforcement, public participation, access to environmental information and local law.

I will give a brief description of Human Right to Environment in Statute of Autonomy of Catalonia and in Spanish Constitution and also in Aarhus Convention (United Nations). Then I will analyze if an effective protection of this Human Right to Environment is provided for. In order to answer this question, the three “pillars” of Aarhus Convention (free acces to environmental information, public participation and acces to justice) are seen in Catalan and Spanish Environmental Law.

Nuria Pumar

Núria Pumar is Professor of Labor Law at the University of Barcelona (UB). She currently lectures on Labour Law and Social Security at Law and Labour Relations studies. Her main research interests concern the issue of equality and affirmative action in labour law and social protection as well as employment policies referring to its international and European legislation. She has written books and several articles in specialized journals on these issues. Núria Pumar is a member of the group "Law with the women" of the Faculty of Law at UB and is involved in organizing the seminar on "Feminist Analysis of Law" that next year will make its seventh edition. Currently she chairs the Equality Commission of the Faculty of Law at UB. In 2010 she led the research project "The Review of the Protection of single-parent families by the Social Security" which has been awarded the FIPROS award 2009 by the Ministry of Labour and Immigration.

Gender law

Taking as a starting point the influence of European gender Law on Spanish legislation, I will outline the main features of the Spanish sex equality law. In addition I will focus the presentation on two legal policies concerning gender topics which have a great impact on women's rights and represent major barriers to achieving women's empowerment:

a) first, I will describe the main key aspects of the Spanish legislation against gender violence, in particular its main goals as a legal tool for providing integral protection to the victim, b) and secondly, I will make some remarks about women's situation in the Spanish labour market. More particularly, I will refer to the topic of reconciling work and family connected with recent Spanish labour and social protection reforms in a context of economic crisis.

Ignasi Labastida

Copyright Issues related with the implementation of Open Access policies

Ignasi Labastida has a PhD in Physics and he is currently the Head of the Research Unit at the CRAI (Learning and Research Resource Center) at the University of Barcelona. He is also the Public Leader of Creative Commons Spain, a project hosted at the University of Barcelona through the Office for Knowledge Dissemination (<http://www.ub.edu/odc>). He is a member of the OCW Consortium (<http://www.ocwconsortium.org/>) Board of Directors on behalf of Creative Commons and a member of the Administrative Council of Communia (<http://www.communia-association.org/>), an International Association on the Public Domain. He has led different projects related with Open Educational Resources, Open Access and Open Data within its own institution and partnering with external institutions.

The presentation will provide an overview of the copyright issues related with the implementation of Open Access policies. It will focus on the need to obtain permission to reproduce and disseminate a copy of any published paper taking into account any copyright transfer signed by authors. This permission is needed to implement Green Open Access policies through repositories. Moreover it will explore the use of open content licenses in repositories and journals to move to the Gold Open Access model that offers not only free access to full text but full reuse of contributions.

Accessing legal information in Catalonia: open access to legislation and case-law

The session outlines free online legal resources to conduct research on Catalan and Spanish legislation and case-law. Most of these resources are primary sources made public by government bodies. We will consider how the Spanish and Catalan governments, in their attempt to promote equal access to case law and legislation, cover the different jurisdictions. We will also mention the resources used to conduct historical legal research about legislation and case law.

UB Rare Book and Manuscript Library

<http://www.bib.ub.edu/en/libraries/rare-book/>

The importance of the Rare Book and Manuscript Library resides in the number and the richness of the volumes that it guards. As a consequence of the confiscation of the ecclesiastical goods of 1835, the holdings of the convent libraries in Barcelona, very rich in manuscripts, incunabula and printed books from 16th to 18th centuries, were gathered in the University in order to create a great Public Library. These books constitute, nowadays, the main body of the collection of the Rare Book and Manuscript Library of the University of Barcelona, with an important collection of engravings and parchments, and some donations, as the one of Rudolf Grewe about kitchen and gastronomy.

Barcelona Bar Association

<http://www.icab.es>

Ever since its foundation, on 17 January 1833, the ICAB has been working to offer continuous professional training and development and an ever increasing number of services to its members, who currently total 20.000.

The library of the Barcelona Bar Association is an institution "of and for the lawyers". It specialises in Law and Social Sciences and is considered one of the most important law libraries in Europe. From the very beginning, its task is to offer the members of the Bar all necessary resources to support and facilitate the legal practice.

Nowadays it holds over 300.000 volumes, nearly 1,500 regular publications and 50 databases concerning legislation, case-law, authorities, and forms.

Parliament of Catalonia

<http://www.parlament.cat>

The Parliament is the institution that represents the people of Catalonia, which places it at the heart of Catalonia's institutional self-governing system.

Parliament sits at the Parliament Palace, in the city of Barcelona. However, it may also sit at other locations in Catalonia.

The Saló de Sessions, or Assembly Hall, is where the Plenary Assembly of the Parliament of Catalonia usually sits. The Members of Parliament, in Parliamentary groups, are seated in their seats forming a semicircle - half a circumference split by an aisle - in front of the Presiding Committee. Members' seats are usually referred to as "benches", because in former parliaments they did actually used to sit on benches.

National Library of Catalonia

<http://www.bnc.cat>

The mission of the Biblioteca de Catalunya (BC) is to gather, conserve and disseminate the bibliographical output of Catalonia and that production related with the Catalan linguistic field.

The Biblioteca de Catalunya is located in one of the most important examples of civic Gothic architecture in Catalonia, the Hospital de la Santa Creu in Barcelona. Built between the XVth and XVIIth centuries, it was the largest hospital in Catalonia for many centuries and was the result of the fusion of several hospitals that existed in medieval Barcelona.

The collection of the Biblioteca de Catalunya is rich and has a great bibliographic and documentary value. It is made up of nearly three million documents in various formats: books, magazines, newspapers, manuscripts, engravings, maps, scores, sound and audiovisual recordings, CD-rom, etc. Since 1981 it has brought together the printed and recorded material coming from the legal deposit of Catalonia.

The Journal of World Investment & Trade is the recognized forum where the most current issues concerning foreign direct investment are debated: arbitration in investment disputes, bilateral and multilateral investment treaties, compensation in case of expropriation, analysis of investment flows and their effect, as well as the WTO trade issues which affect investment. Particular attention is paid to the conclusion of scores of investment treaties meant to regulate investment flows, both multilateral and bilateral - there are, at present, an estimated 1,800 bilateral investment treaties - and the many questions which the proliferation of these treaties provoke, such as their efficiency at increasing investment flows, their compatibility with State sovereignty, the working of their arbitral dispute settlement systems, the awards rendered by arbitral tribunals, and the like. It also covers the political aspects of these investment treaties within the wider context of inter-State relationships.
